

HOW IT WORKS

Agentic CPQ on Databricks

From a natural-language brief to a governed, review-ready quote in one seller workspace.

Build with context

Use the selected account, product catalog, installed base, order history, and reviewed seller guidance.

Protect commercial truth

Reconcile segment pricing, supplier cost, margin, Equipment Care, discounts, and approval requirements.

Finish in one workflow

Carry the draft through role-aware review, quote history, revision control, and a customer-ready PDF.

One account workspace

Account, draft, and Genie stay on the same screen.

Ask about planned chair count and expansion timing

Explore whether imaging capacity limits patient volume

Identify overdue consumables for the expansion plan

Build a quote after confirming expansion priorities

Genie uses account context

The reply uses Riverfront's four-chair footprint and expansion status, then asks about capacity and timing.

Ask about planned chair count and expansion timing

Riverfront Dental Group currently operates 4 chairs at one location and is marked as expanding; there are no staged products on the quote. Ask the practice manager: "How many total operatories do you plan to have after the expansion, and what timing are you targeting for the additional chairs?"

Follow up with: "Will the new capacity be added at the current location or tied to a second location, and do you expect any imaging or workflow upgrades alongside the chairs?"

Build a quote for Riverfront's planned additional operatories

Explore imaging capacity needs alongside the chair expansion

Review overdue replenishment needs across gloves and anesthetic

Confirm expansion timing before recommending equipment

A missing detail pauses the plan

Before building a quote, Genie asks how many new operatories Riverfront plans to add. The draft stays empty while it waits.
